Notes from Nancy:

There are some familiar axioms that seem especially appropriate right now.

The first is “Change is good”. As we promised, you will see some changes in the gallery when we re-open on Friday, March 4. We’ve been busy reorganizing; patching, plastering, painting, going through, tossing out (no paintings, just magazines and paper stuff!), and buying some new things designed to help us become more organized and efficient. Our new website is up and running. Check it out at www.southstreetartgallery.com! We hope you will find it simple, and easier to use. Our goal is to keep it very updated with all of the artwork that is currently available in the gallery. This month we will start our new gallery hours, which are Friday and Saturday 10 until 5, and Sunday noon until 5. We always welcome appointments and drop-ins when we are here working. Seriously! Just look for the Open sign next to the front door.

Continuing in the spirit of “Change”, our long-time employee and office manager, Diane DuBois Mullaly, will be leaving us on March 31 to dedicate more time to painting and to settle into her new home in Talbot County. Diane will continue to be affiliated with South Street, working from her home studio as our graphic designer, and she will also help us on occasion in the gallery. We will miss Diane more than you can know, but we are excited to see her start this next phase of her artistic journey. South Street Art Gallery will continue to be the only gallery on the Eastern Shore exhibiting Diane's miniature oil paintings.

The second axiom is "Expect the unexpected". Rather than returning from our long planned vacation in Egypt with lots of images for me to paint, we will instead be just back from a less adventurous yet perhaps more relaxing vacation in Costa Rica. I've been dreaming of scenes from the Cairo markets and boats on the Nile for so long, our new destination has required a major shift in thinking. But who can complain about white beaches, azure oceans, and tropical jungles?

To celebrate our reopening, many of our artists have given us new work so you'll have lots of new things to see during the First Weekend Gallery Walk on Friday March 4, from 5 to 7 pm

And we are pleased to announce that our first major show for 2011 will open on Saturday April 16 at 5 pm, with paintings by local legend Professor James Plumb.

We look forward to seeing you in the gallery again!
